Donor partnerships are an integral part of the EBRD business model, blending grants and finance to enhance well-functioning market economies and create sustainable growth. By co-financing EBRD operations and activities, such as policy reform and technical cooperation, donors generate greater impact in the region where we work, from Morocco to Mongolia.

Our projects help raise regulatory standards and governance at the corporate and institutional level. They strengthen economies and bolster transparency, fair competition, modernisation, inclusion and the sustainable use of resources.

In 2016 the EBRD secured €445 million of new donor funds from the European Union, individual governments and donor agencies, as well as from global funds. During the year, the Bank used €409 million of grants in support of its work.

On average, a third of EBRD operations were underpinned by donor funds, especially in our countries of operations that face the most significant economic challenges.

Donor funds supported the Bank’s engagement in scaling up green investments, implementing our Gender Strategy, responding to the refugee crisis in Jordan and Turkey, and launching our Green Cities Framework for cleaner urban environments.

The ultimate beneficiaries of EBRD donors’ generosity include the millions of citizens who now enjoy greener municipal services and the entrepreneurs who have more access to finance and advice and are generating jobs. Industries and infrastructures have also benefited, by using cleaner technology. And regulators are now better equipped to implement reforms that improve the business climate.
